

Marc Castiello

Team Member since 2014

Experience: Ever since I could remember, I loved being outdoors and involved with nature's elements. Growing up, I was an avid golfer and worked at my local club caddying, learning operations and ground maintenance. As I got older my career path took a turn and headed me into the Culinary Arts direction where I became an Executive Chef, owning my own operation at a very young age and later working for some of the best Five Star Hotels in the world. My passion for creating and making people happy through my culinary expression has not wavered since joining Rutgers as a Sales Associate and now as Nursery Sales Manager, I continue expressing my passion and creating, but in landscape design fashion.

Education: Associates in Culinary Arts, The Restaurant School at Walnut Hill College, Philadelphia, PA, Business Management at NY Stern School of Business, Manhattan, NY, Landscape Management, Rutgers University, NJ

Favorite thing about working for Rutgers: Working at Rutgers has become a great passion since joining this team; everyone seems to feed energy off of one another which brings a sense of togetherness... each and every team member also respects each other and truly wants to see Rutgers Landscape Design/Nursery succeed and be the very best it can be.

Hobbies: Golfing, fishing, cooking, spending time with my family, NY Yankees, Miami Dolphins Goals: To become a cutting edge landscape designer, while continuing to build and grow my career in business development.
